nonviolent action is not only descriptive, but also representative, and what it represents is the truth. Here we find the context for individual action and accountability, and a mechanism for effective social change.

Dr. Anna Alomes is a philosopher, primarily interested in nonviolence, reconciliation and conflict resolution issues. From a teaching background, her interests developed into a consultancy advisory role in the public and private sector. The exercise of power became an extension of interest. In particular, ways in which power might be exercised without coercion, force and violence. This led to further research and the completion of a PhD in Philosophy entitled Power in Philosophy: Two Arguments for Nonviolence Today. Since that time she has pursued the application of this research for practical benefits at a local and international level.

Anna's work on human rights issues has involved liaison with the Tibetan Government in Exile, and the Truth and Reconciliation Commission in South Africa. She is presently executive Director of the World Institute for Nonviolence and Reconciliation.

3 Sessions: $36

9A & MEDITATION PRACTICE

9B Garrie O'Toole

Meditation is the heart of the Buddhist approach to living our lives with greater clarity, compassion and sanity. In the regular practice of meditation we discover that we can sit comfortably with our thoughts and emotions without either being overwhelmed by them or needing to suppress or reject them. As a result the mind becomes more settled and tranquil of its own accord and in the process we discover a natural sense of humour and generosity.

This course will introduce the principles of shamatha or tranquillity meditation and will provide participants with the information they need to foster their own daily meditation practice.

Garrie O'Toole has been involved in Buddhist practice and study since 1978. He has been a student of the Ven. Traleg Kyabgon Rinpoche for almost two decades and is a meditation instructor at E-Vam Institute. He has also completed a Master of Arts degree in Buddhist Studies.

A: 2 Sessions: $20 B: 3 Sessions: $30

Courses 9A & 9B is the same course conducted twice.

FORUMS

A forum, as a situation where a variety of views can be presented, offers a rare opportunity for participants to teach and to learn from each other. Because of the success of previous years, we are again conducting forums at the beginning and at the close of the Buddhist Summer School 2001. Teachers involved in the Summer School will take part in the discussions and will encourage audience participation.

These events are free of charge and are not restricted to those who have enrolled in the School, but are open to all.

REGISTRATION

Each course has a corresponding number in the Course Timetable below. Use this timetable to organise your registration. Fill in the enrolment form and send to:
