10 INSIGHT MEDITATION - VIPASSANA

Venerable Sayadaw U. Pandita

This course aims to give us an understanding as to how the practice of Vipassana/Insight meditation can give us a greater insight into the workings of our mind. Insight meditation is a very important aspect of Buddhist practice. Indeed it is said that the gaining of true spiritual insight is only possible through the analytical practices of insight meditation. Insight meditation is designed to cut through to the very essence of things and give us direct insight into the nature of ultimate reality. This course will offer both the theory of insight (Vipassana) meditation as well as opportunities for meditation practice.

Venerable Sayadaw U. Pandita received novice ordination in 1979 and higher ordination in 1984 in Myanmar, at Mahasi Centre, Yangon, from the revered Sayadaw U. Pandita of Panditarama Monastery Meditation Centre. He has done extensive meditation retreats and holds a B.A. in Buddhist literature (Yangon). He has taught in the U.S., Malaysia, Singapore and Thailand, and has been chief resident monk at the Malaysian Buddhist Meditation Centre in Penang. He resides at Dhamma Sukha Meditation Centre, Springvale.

3 Sessions: $30

11 INTRODUCTION TO MEDITATION

Christine Biddle

"A meditative state is simply being present and aware. That is the simplest explanation. When we are not distracted, when our mind is focused, when we are present, then we are in meditation."

Ven Traleg Rinpoche

This course introduces some fundamental meditative techniques which help to cultivate and stabilise 'calm abiding' and contemplative meditation practice. Participants will have the opportunity to discuss how to establish practice in daily life. References for further study will be provided.

Christine Biddle has been a student of Buddhism for twenty years, during which time she has studied and practised in Australia, India and Canada. She currently studies under the direction of the Venerable Traleg Kyabgon, Rinpoche and has completed a traditional three year retreat under the late Kalu, Rinpoche. Christine is a meditation instructor at Kagyu E-Vam Buddhist Institute.

2 Sessions: $26

12 THE RELIGION OF THE VOID: IMAGING BUDDHISM THROUGH WESTERN EYES

Kathleen Gregory

Western narratives of what Buddhism is, what it is concerned with, who the Buddha was and what he aimed for, reveal themselves to be the narratives of Western concerns, predilections, philosophical agendas and ideologies. Buddhism as it has been imaged in the West, that is, tells us about ourselves. Drawing on current PhD research, this workshop series will trace some of those narratives and explore the implications they attest to in undertaking comparative philosophy. The workshop will include both lectures and exercises which will give participants the opportunity to reflect on their own 'imaging of Buddhism'.

Kathleen Gregory is a Melbourne psychologist who has been a student of Traleg Rinpoche's for over ten years and is a meditation instructor at Kagyu E-vam Buddhist Institute. She co-ordinates the Master of Counselling and Human Services Program at La Trobe University as well as maintaining a private practice. She is currently working on a PhD in comparative philosophy.
